Since 2017, Kartesia has committed to the Belgian non-profit organization ‘Maison d’Enfants Reine Marie-Henriette’ in Brussels, which provides special needs education and care to children and young people with severe disabilities. The foundation is led by Mrs. Sophie Tremblay, who is also the Chairperson of the Belgian Executive Committee of the PRI. The foundation’s philosophy is based on a strong belief in the potential of all children, regardless of their abilities. The foundation provides a comprehensive range of services, including education, care, and support services, to help children with disabilities to reach their full potential.

Kartesia has been a long-time supporter of the foundation, and in 2018, the foundation announced that it had received a grant from Kartesia to support the foundation’s ongoing work. The grant will be used to fund the foundation’s various projects, including the development of new educational programs and the expansion of its services to more children.

Kartesia is committed to supporting organizations that align with its values and mission. The foundation is one such organization, and its support is an example of Kartesia’s commitment to giving back to the community and making a positive impact on the lives of those in need.

About the PRI

The PRI is an international organization of investors committed to responsible investment. It was established in 2006 to encourage institutional investors around the world to integrate environmental, social, and governance (ESG) factors into their investment decision-making. The PRI supports its members in their efforts to implement ESG integration and promote responsible investment practices.

The PRI is comprised of thousands of institutional investors from around the world, representing over $100 trillion in assets under management. Members of the PRI include banks, insurance companies, asset managers, and public pension funds.

The PRI promotes the integration of ESG considerations into the investment decision-making process of institutional investors. This involves identifying and evaluating ESG risks and opportunities, and using this information to shape investment decisions.

The PRI also provides guidance to its members on how to implement responsible investment practices, and offers a range of resources and tools to support members in their efforts.

In addition, the PRI conducts research and engages with policymakers and regulators to promote the integration of ESG considerations into the investment decision-making process.

Kartesia is a member of the PRI, and has been an active participant in its activities and initiatives. As a member, Kartesia is committed to integrating ESG considerations into its investment decision-making process and promoting responsible investment practices.

According to the piece of research commissioned by the PRI, “Enabling Engagements with Sectors: A Monitoring and Intervention Framework for Responsible Investment,” this shift in institutional investor practices is intended to influence the behavior of companies and encourage them to adopt more sustainable and responsible practices. The PRI encourages its members to engage with companies and other stakeholders to influence their behavior and promote responsible investment practices.

As a member of the PRI, Kartesia is committed to engaging with companies and other stakeholders to influence their behavior and promote responsible investment practices. Kartesia’s commitment to responsible investment extends beyond its membership in the PRI, as it is committed to aligning its business practices with the PRI’s principles and promoting responsible investment practices throughout the industry.

In conclusion, Kartesia is committed to aligning its business practices with the PRI’s principles and promoting responsible investment practices throughout the industry. Kartesia’s commitment to responsible investment extends beyond its membership in the PRI, as it is committed to engaging with companies and other stakeholders to influence their behavior and promote responsible investment practices.
The ESG Challenge in Private Debt: Tackling Climate Change

Kartesia is confident that companies with high environmental, social and governance (ESG) standards are typically better run, have fewer business risks and ultimately deliver better value. The challenge is to continue to engage with portfolio companies on climate change, including size, industry and FTE and ultimately deliver better value. What is vital is that our investors have the relevant information required to monitor their investments and support climate-reporting frameworks such as the recommendations of the Financial Stability Board Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures. As an investment fund working with those same investors, Kartesia believes that it is its fiduciary duty to incorporate climate change concerns into our investment process. The challenge is to continue to engage with climate issues and maintain our position as a market-leading private debt specialist, where access to management and influence with climate issues and maintain our position as a market-leading private debt specialist, where access to management and influence with climate issues and maintain our position as a market-leading private debt specialist, where access to management and influence with climate issues and maintain our position as a market-leading private debt specialist, where access to management and influence with climate issues and maintain our position as a market-leading private debt specialist, where access to management and influence with climate issues and maintain our position as a market-leading private debt specialist, where access to management and influence with climate issues and maintain our position as a market-leading private debt specialist, where access to management and influence with climate issues.
